

Website updates - 1st September 2011

Website hosting

Visitors to our website may have experienced problems in recent months with access to the site. This was caused by monthly limits on usage that had begun to be applied earlier this year with the result that the site became unavailable during the latter part of each month.

We are sorry if you have been inconvenienced by this situation. We have now changed our website hosting arrangements so that this should no longer be a problem.

Website changes

The change to our website hosting arrangements provides us with the ideal opportunity to refresh and update our site. This is currently being done so please bear with us while we complete these changes.
